Region III Environmental Colloquium

Interdisciplinary Environmental Management

Integrating Resources for Environmental Excellence

Our missions today have become more complex and urgent. Many organizations have successfully responded to new operational challenges and maintained high standards of environmental stewardship through the use of interdisciplinary environmental management practices. The 2003 Region III Environmental Colloquium will provide the opportunity to learn about "real-life" integrated environmental management solutions that meet the environmental and security challenges we face today. Representatives from EPA, the Department of Defense, and State regulatory agencies will discuss environmental and regulatory issues. Breakout sessions and workshops will serve as forums to share techniques for improving the effectiveness and efficiency of environmental protection. Come join us in Williamsburg, Virginia, and take advantage of the opportunity to talk with your Federal and State regulators and your colleagues from neighboring facilities.
